

Is the Voice Lisa's Protector or a Predator?

When Alexander is murdered, Lisa's carefree and safe world unravels. At 16, her only escape is to escape from the mayhem and chaos that promises to come crashing on her very being. From her wicked mother. From her stepbrother. And from the church. The year is 1000 AD.

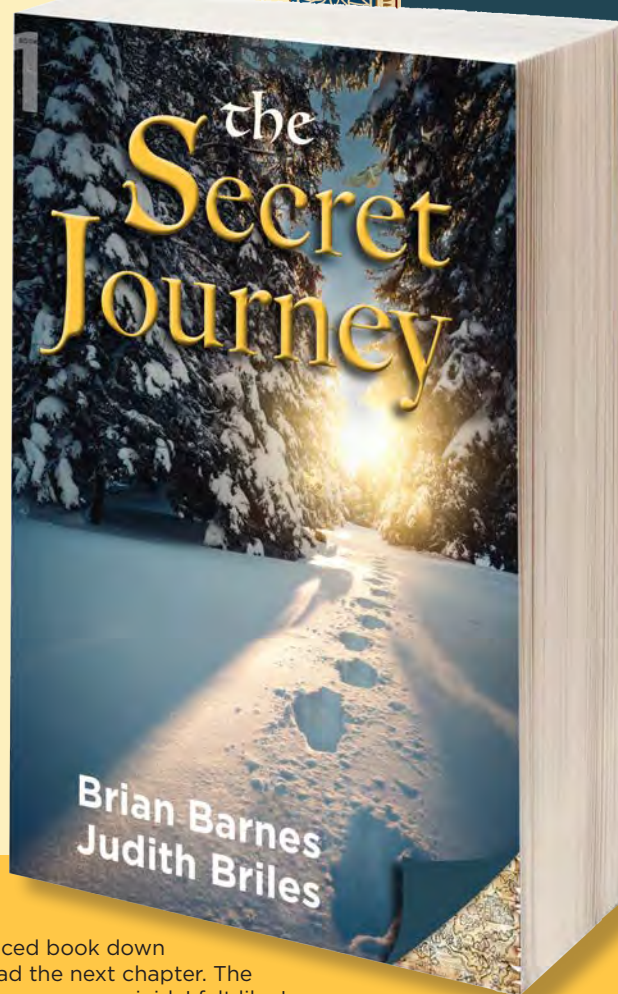

Bright and people-smart, she became the eyes and ears of her papa's many enterprises. Lisa was his confidant and the son he desired. In his Solar, he revealed a plan for her to follow if he were to die.

Within days, it is put into motion with Alexander's sudden death. The map created for her had instructions and a special key. It would guide Lisa hundreds of miles from her papa's villa in Marseilles to Paris, where his business partner Ezra lived.

Her possessions were the tunic on her back, a cloak, Papa's jeweled dagger, and the coin that he had sequestered for her. And a mysterious voice that forewarns and guides her. Lisa's travel mode was her feet.

What follows her is a stepbrother in hot pursuit, filled with anger, hate, and revenge. Fredric's lust to take over his inherited status—a status that requires the knowledge only Lisa has.

Will Lisa get to Paris? Will Ezra welcome and help her? Will she discover who killed Papa? Will the Voice that invades her sleep continue to guide her? Will she ever feel safe and loved again?

If I had to describe in one word:
AWESOME!

I couldn't put this fast-paced book down and hurried to read the next chapter. The descriptions were so vivid, I felt like I was there. A must read for the whole family.

Brian Barnes spent decades in construction. While he built and could fix anything that required a hammer, screwdriver, saw, or drill, his mind filled with stories that only retirement gave him the time to write.

Judith Briles is the author of 43 books and The Book Shepherd to thousands of authors. Her construction tools are her words and imagination.
